The University
HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

THE LANDS OF THE ABOVE-NAMED ASSOCIATION are situated in San Francisco and are eligibly and most delightfully located, adjoining the grounds purchased by the Presbyterian University Society, on which College buildings are to be at once erected. The site is less than thirty minutes ride from Montgomery street, lying just west or back of the lands of the South San Francisco Homestead and Railroad Association and the Bay View Park, almost within a stone's throw of ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

The tract will require little or no grading, there being scarcely a single lot on which it would not be safe to build without any change of grade. It commands a

Beautiful View of the Bay,

And its opposite shore, and has a soil of extreme richness. So great are the natural attractions of the spot that very many of the wealthy citizens of San Francisco have already purchased whole blocks in the same tract, and design building residences thereon.

The Rev. E. Thomas, D. D.,

Is President of the Association; Lester L. Robinson, formerly Vice President of the Sacramento Railroad Company, is the Treasurer, and Thomas H. Lewis, formerly of Portland, Secretary.

Four lots, 25x100 feet each, constitute a share, costing $315—paid in monthly installments of $10 each, after the first payment of $20 has been made.

Maps and books giving full information of the workings of the Association can be obtained at the store of J. L. PARRISH & CO.

It is an easy and a cheap way for young men to procure property which will in a few years make them independent.

PIONEER WASHER.
JAMES BRUSIE,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It is easily worked by one person.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to all housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

The undersigned is now in the city of Portland, where he can be seen at Mr. O. Kilbourn's Store, corner of Front and Yamhill Sts., East side, Portland, and is prepared to furnish the Machine to purchasers and also to sell and dispose of County Rights for the sale of the same.

The Eastern Press on the Connecticut Election.

The New York Tribune remarks on this subject:

We think it safe to say that if Mr English had been as poor a man as Governor Hawley, he would have no chance whatever of election. How money was to be used, was made clear in the unblushing efforts to buy up the Workingmen's Convention in New Haven, and in the success with which the same tactics were pursued in detail. Much of this rascality will yet have to see the light of day. The exposure may not change the result of the election, but it will deprive it of any political significance, and will brand this Copperhead success as more disgraceful than any defeat, and as likely to be in the end more damaging. Even the Connecticut Democracy may yet come to understand that honesty is the best policy.

The influence of this Copperhead victory, so far as it is felt at all outside the State limits, will be most harmful at the South. It may possibly retard to some degree the growth, now becoming rapid, of a healthy political sentiment, and hinder reconstruction upon the basis of the existing law. There will be found demagogues to assure the people of the South that this is the beginning of a great rebellion at the North, destined to overturn Congress and substitute the policy of the President for the policy of the people. There will be some fools to believe this: so, here and there, Connecticut will be potent to do little harm by its bad vote of yesterday. It will not be much.

The Boston Journal regrets the results which it states the free use of money, the loss of some Republican votes through Democratic artifices in the workingmen's movement, the influence of Democratic gains in New Hampshire, and the unfavorable weather, combined to promote, and adds:

It will be seen that the Republican State which has faltered is not one of those bearing the most advanced record, but, on the contrary, the only one in New England which has hesitated to apply the impartial principles of the Republican creed. Had the colored Republicans of Connecticut been allowed to vote, not only would this reverse have been avoided, but the organization would have been stronger and braver. The error, to be sure, has been repeated of—for the Connecticut Republicans took noble ground in the last campaign—but its fruits could not be wholly averted. But again, it will be seen that the small Democratic gains made in this always closely contested State are not found to any extent in the country towns, where disinterested changes of opinion are most likely to be first observed, but in large cities and manufacturing places, where the corrupting influences we have referred to above prevail in an extraordinary degree. All hope, therefore, of the national resuscitation of the Democratic party, based on this Connecticut election, must prove feeble and fleeting. The South will perceive that the exception only proves the rule of the genuine predominance of Republican sentiment among the masses of the North. The effect upon the Republican party will only be to strengthen it in a determination to live up to its principles, to be vigilant, discreet, and united, and to insure its still going on from conquering to conquer.

The New York Herald, of course, considers the Democratic victory, as brought about by the nomination of P. T. Barnum for Congress, against whom that paper has an old grudge, and to whose defeat it has been devoting page after page. It ridicules the folly of the Democrats in considering it a victory of their principles, saying:

On the part of the Democrats this is an old blunder. They made it in this State in 1862, over their success with Seymour. That was a perilous time. John Van Buren came to Fort Washington twice in those gloomy days to consult with us as to what should be done. We saw that there was one chance for the party. The Republicans were then weak-kneed, shaky in purpose, and had made great blunders in the conduct of the war. We told the departed Prince that he must put his candidate before the people on a sound war platform—that the party must stand straight on the great national question, and outbid the Republicans themselves for a vigorous prosecution of the war. Our advice was taken, and Seymour went in with a rush. But the purblind Democracy did not understand its own victory. In spite of all the facts, it interpreted the result in its favor as a popular declaration against the war, and acting on that interpretation it fell into irretrievable ruin in the succeeding canvass. The Democracy is now only doing over again in the case of Connecticut, what was then done in the case of our State; and the result will be the same, for no amount of warping will open the eyes of those who willfully refuse to see.

We can tell those partisans that the result in Connecticut is neither a turning of the tide against the Republican party nor the result of any such secondary causes as Republicans themselves allege. The whole explanation of the result in Connecticut lies, as Demosthenes might have said, in three words. Those words are—Barnum! Barnum! Barnum! It is a case of Barnum through and through. The defeat of the Republican ticket was an expression of the moral sense of an intelligent and upright community. The party managers made a nomination that was no insult to the voters—that outraged their ideas of the proprieties, not to say decencies, of political life, and they resented the insult practically by voting not only against the one candidate, but against the whole ticket. The one bad name corrupted all. The Republican party is, perhaps, not so vigorous in Connecticut as in some other States. It is strong enough, however, for ordinary occasions, and may stand some very bad nominations; but it was not strong enough to stand Barnum. That worst of all possible nominations carried it down like a millstone. And there is only this one fact to be seen in the result of the Connecticut election.

LETTER FROM GOV. PATTON OF ALABAMA.—Gov. Patton, of Alabama, in a recent letter to Lieut. Governor Voorhies, of Louisiana, alludes to his published letter on the political situation, and says:

It seems to me that it is the true feeling of the Southern people to contribute their best influence favoring an early organization of their respective States, in accordance with the requirements of the recent Reconstruction Act. Congress claims the right to control the whole question. In my humble judgment it is unwise to contend longer against its power, or to struggle further against its repeatedly expressed will.

I am clearly of the opinion that an appeal to the Courts would accomplish no good. If a test case were brought before the judiciary, it would open up a series of the most complicated questions which, perhaps, ever engaged the attention of any tribunal. Questions of such vast magnitude could not speedily be disposed of. They would necessarily require much time; and before a consideration could be reached the Southern States, in all probability, would be fully reorganized under the Congressional plan. Indeed the supplemental bill provides specially for reorganization; and the only practical question is, who will participate in the work. If

The Play Ended.

When Congress first announced its policy in regard to the Southern States, and when it became evident that there was an intention to ignore the governments which the President had established, or caused to be established there, not a few persons stood forth to predict that whatever might have been the informality which had attended the creation of those governments, the work would ultimately stand; that no attempt on the part of Congress to supersede the governments which had been erected could be successful, and that the thought of superseding them, might therefore as well be abandoned at once. These predictions were not confined to those who had bitterly opposed the action of Congress in all things, for not a few Union men (of that class who unfortunately are considerably wanting in pluck) made similar declarations. The result shows what mistakes are likely to be made by hasty prophecy. State governments cannot exist without the recognition of Congress, and the Supreme Court which was depended on as the final hope for the conservation of the illegitimate political organizations of the South, announces that it is powerless to act in the premises. All the injunction cases are dismissed, and the efforts which were made by political doctors to arrest the dissolution of the spurious State governments have totally failed. The injunction medicine was not a remedy, and the long incantation of Sharkey & Co., to which we have been obliged to listen, had no power to save.

It would not be very hazardous to guess that there are a good many persons who have not now the same confidence in the Supreme Court which they had a few months ago. No doubt their reverence for that tribune has suddenly been very seriously impaired. Its recent action dismissing the petitions of Georgia and Mississippi for want of jurisdiction, is equivalent to a declaration that the whole business is in the hands of the legislative branch of the Government. This ends the opposition to the measures of Congress. The play is over. We say this because we take it for granted from the silence of the Northern Democracy that they are not going to fight. This is the exigency in which they promised to fight; but they never seemed more devoted to peace than now. The crisis has come and gone without anybody's knowing it.

The frequent changes which have been made in the rates of taxes, customs, etc., have contributed greatly to the disarrangement of the finances of the country and have added not a little to the embarrassments of industry and trade. No other nation makes so many alterations in its laws in these respects as ours. We have had half a dozen different tariffs in as many years, and the subject is still as unsettled as ever. The internal taxes are in a like condition of uncertainty, and we still go on making experiments and trying expedients, and settling on nothing. A simplification of our revenue system, so as to supply the exchequer from the fewest possible sources, and thereby relieve industry and trade of much serious and unnecessary embarrassment, is vitally needed. These problems will ere long be regarded as being equal in interest and importance to any that can engage the attention either of statesmen or of the people.

The Albany Journal publishes an article on the price of wool, in which reference is made to the recent action of wool-growers at Albany, and an estimate made of the probable cost of shipping wool to the East. For wool to pull 25 cents in coin here, of course it must sell in New York for as much more than this as will pay all expenses of shipment and remit the proceeds. This would require the wool, on the Journal's estimate, to bring at least 35 cents in currency in the East. But this is at least 10 cents more than the average price of wool in New York, as given in recent telegraphic quotations. We are unable to see, therefore, how Oregon wool-growers can obtain 25 cents per pound for their wool by shipping it away; or how, indeed, they can do so well with it as to sell it to our own manufacturers at the rates now offered.

A scheme is on foot among the planters of Louisiana for the introduction of a large number of coolie laborers. Two steamer loads recently arrived at New Orleans, and more are on the route. They cost per man, delivered on the plantations, between $50 and $60, and they are to be paid at the rate of $12 per month. Their engagement is for a term of years, and the planters believe they can make their labor more profitable than any other that can be obtained.

QUIET AND CORN.—The New Orleans Christian Advocate very sensibly says: "Our people need but two things—quiet and corn. They will not be able to afford the luxury of revolutionizing any more during the life-time probably of their youngest children. Whatever is done in this way must be carried on by those who have heretofore made a better thing of it than the South has."

Wisconsin has the lead of all the States in proposing to give women the right of suffrage. A resolution proposing to amend the Constitution of the State so as to allow women over twenty-one years of age to vote, has passed the Legislature and gone to the people,—that is to say, to the men,—for their decision. It is believed it will be carried.

A correspondent of the New York Herald, writing from Marion, Smythe county, Virginia, says that "the President is denounced, on every hand for not having dispersed the Congress and taken the settlement into his own hands. The people claim that by holding out a false hope he has led them into difficulties and then deserted them when they most needed his aid."

In view of the interest which the Victoria people take in the canvass in Washington Territory, the Seattle Gazette recommends that for the accommodation of Frank Clarke's British friends, an election precinct be established at Victoria. The warehouse of the Hudson's Bay Company is recommended as a suitable place.

NEW PAPER.—The Boise Statesman says that F. Kenyon will commence the publication of a paper called the Mining News, at Leesburg, (Salmon river mines), early in June. The material for the paper has been sent forward.

Port Townsend, Washington Territory, is to have a newspaper. It will be called the Weekly Message, and will be Union-Republican in politics.

The Statesman of the 11th says that the Boise river was falling, and that no higher water was looked for than had already occurred.

The Mountaineer learns that Tygh valley is infested by grasshoppers. They are so numerous this early in the season that the farmers despair of raising any grain or vegetables. Fears are entertained that other portions of the country will be visited by this innumerable army. It also says that in Klickatat valley the crickets are destroying everything. Some farmers are endeavoring to fence against them by placing a fifteen inch board with a cap on the top, making a barrier which it is hoped will prevent further progress, and prove a success against these destroyers. Taking into consideration the presence of grasshoppers, crickets, and the drouth which now seems apparent, our harvest will be unusually light this season.

MONTICELLO, W. T., May 17, 1867.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The citizens of this Territory are in the midst of a political agitation in the canvass for the election of Delegate to Congress.

Messrs. Flanders and Clark (candidates) accompanied by Mr Garfield, addressed the citizens of Cowlitz county, on yesterday afternoon, at the Monticello school house.

It was Mr. Clark's day to lead in speaking. He filled his hour and a quarter, in which he delivered a purely Copperhead speech. Was a little in favor of the Union, but saw a nigger in the fence. Would favor a North Pacific Railway (if it came to Stoilacoom—his home, I presume). Had a high estimation of Frank Clark, "had filled all the offices from alderman up," and had been attorney for the Hudson's Bay Company.

Mr. Flanders followed in a patriotic and sound Union speech. Was most emphatically for freedom and liberty. Went for the Northern Pacific Railway to terminate at the best point on Puget Sound, and for a branch to the Columbia river. Would labor to secure appropriations for the general interest of the Territory. Was not in favor of Hudson's Bay Company lawyers for delegates to Congress, and thought his opponent was running hest in British Columbia.

Mr. Garfield closed with a very able and sound speech having the true ring, in which he badgered the little Copperhead lights and leaders of Cowlitz, and sent them howling to their holes like unto these little animals living in villages on the great American plains, when the earth is made to tremble with the heavy thunder of the valley.

He reviewed the reconstruction act of Congress; explained its working and the merit of the bills intended to restore the Union; explained the Constitutional basis of representation South and North, as under the old Constitution, and the Reconstruction Acts and pending Constitutional Amendment; was for Union, freedom and this poor man's (as well as rich) Republic. He is a heavy gun on the Union side of the canvass and is increasing in popular favor. OBSERVER.

AN INTERESTING REPORT.—The following report of the recent movements of Lt Western, in the Indian country, toward Harney Lake, is kindly furnished us by the A. A. Adjt-Gen. of this Department, with liberty to publish. It will be found interesting:

HD. QRS. CAMP LOGAN, OREGON, May 5, 1867.

SIR:—I have the honor to respectfully report that I left Camp, April 20th, 1867, with a detachment of 1 sergeant, 2 corporals and 10 privates of Co. F, 8th Cavalry, to pursue, and if possible to punish, a band of Snake Indians who had been committing depredations on the Canyon City road, about forty miles below this camp. I struck the main trail of the Indians, April 24th, near the head of Murderer's creek—followed it two days, when finding from the nature of the ground I was going over—the mud being knee deep to the horses, and the streams almost impassable—that it was impossible to overtake the Indians while encumbered with the pack train, I took three days' rations, left a guard of one man with the train, and commenced the chase in earnest. April 26th, crossed the mountains toward Harney Lake and camped after dark in a canyon, having traveled 40 miles. It was almost impossible to get the horses over the mountains, the mud and snow being from one to four feet deep, in places being compelled to fasten a lariat in a halter ring and drag the horses through, one at a time. The Indian sign being very fresh, I did not deem it prudent to allow fires, and everybody suffered greatly that night from the cold. The next morning (27th) shortly after daylight, I came up to the Indians, who were camped at a place where two branches of Silvies river unite, about 35 miles from Harney Lake, and not more than 6 miles from where we had camped the night previous. I at once attacked them, attempting to cross the river mounted, but finding that was impossible, from the river being filled with drift wood, dismounted, left three men to hold the horses and crossed afoot, the water being neck deep. The Indians, numbering 40 or 50, of whom 21 or 22 were warriors, at first seemed disposed to stand and fight, but soon after we gained their side of the river, they fled in every direction. The pursuit was continued until the perfect exhausted condition of the men compelled its cessation. Some of the difficulties under which we labored will be understood when it is stated that in ascending the mountain to which the Indians had fled, we were compelled to climb the almost perpendicular faces of rocks 10 or 15 feet high, the men assisting each other up, passing their carbines from one to another, and this under the fire of the retreating Indians. I am unable to state the exact number of Indians killed—only six were found—a number are also known to have been killed or severely wounded—among them their chief—but were carried off by their comrades, or later in the day, while fighting among the rocks, succeeded in concealing themselves so that they could not be found. A number of wounded attempted to cross the main Silvies river, and must have drowned, the river being very deep with swift current and rapids just below the place where they were crossing. The result of the expedition is, in addition to the Indians killed, the capture of 32 head of horses, 21 of which I succeeded in bringing to Camp; 7 were shot on the way, being unable to travel, and 4 were left at ranches on the Canyon City road for the same reason. All their camp equipage and supplies, including about one ton and a half of camas root, all of which being useless for Government purposes, was destroyed. A papoose about a year old was also abandoned by the Indians. As I had no means at my disposal to bring it in, it was placed out of reach of wild swine—is and left, in hopes of its being found by the survivors. When about three miles away, a squaw was seen returning to the Indian Camp, and it is presumed the child was taken charge of by her. The next morning, April 28th, I started on my return to Camp Logan, which I reached the night of May 4th, 1867. For a day and a half before reaching the Canyon City road the men were without anything to eat, occasioned by some pack mules falling off the trail into the south fork of John Days river, the packs having to be abandoned to save the mules. The enlisted men comprising the detachment are entitled to great credit for the cheerfulness with which they endured hunger and cold, and their conduct during the fight.

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works, and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business.

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of materials and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world; and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the minting and commercial value of bullion.

Their charges hereafter will be as follows:

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS.

One-eighth of one per cent. (heretofore a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000; and two dollars for any smaller sum. Returns made in twenty-four hours.

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS.

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1,600, and one-eighth of one per cent. for all amounts over that sum, and one per cent. on the silver contained. Returns made in twenty-four hours.

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS.

On bullion under 300 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 300⅓@600 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 600⅓@750 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 750⅓@940⅔ parts gold, 8 cents per ounce.
Above 950 the only charge will be for coinage. But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD.

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent—and which is paid by us to that institution. But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us.

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY-EIGHT HOURS.

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint.

THE ODD FELLOWS' REUNION.—The close of the Odd Fellows' Reunion, at the American Exchange on Friday night, was at too late an hour to admit anything like a fair report in our Saturday morning's paper. We then promised the publication, as soon as possible, of the toasts offered on that occasion. The large company present, after the adjournment of a lodge meeting of Hassalo Lodge, was marshaled into procession by the committee of arrangements of which Mr C. H. Marvin was chairman, and marched to the dining hall of the Exchange Hotel, where over two hundred Odd Fellows sat down to a splendid supper prepared by Mr. Quimby, the landlord. Immediately after supper, Mr. Marvin, on behalf of the lodge giving the entertainment, read the following regular toasts:

1st. The Arch of Odd Fellowship—As the triune columns of Friendship, Love and Truth support the arch of Odd Fellowship, so may the great pillars of Education, Liberty and Humanity uphold the mighty temple in which the citizens of this great republic shall dwell forever in unity and harmony, firmly cemented by the blinds of that order whose reunion we this day celebrate.

Response.

Music—Hail Columbia.

2d. The Grand Lodge of the United States—It is a monument of good works, the great conservator of the principles and practices of our Order; it needs no eulogy; criticism cannot reach or harm it; let it stand therefore untouched by the frail words of man, as second to none of the deliberative bodies of which our nation proudly and justly boasts.

Mr. Orr, Guests—The R. W. G. L. of Oregon.—We greet them in the true spirit of Odd Fellowship—we hail them as Odd Fellows; we know them to be good fellows, and we heartily welcome them to this festive board.

Response by Rep. Moores, of Chemeketa, No. 1.

4th—The G. M., elect of the jurisdiction of Oregon—We turn to him as the exponent of of the principles of our order, having entire confidence that he will obey and faithfully discharge the duties, and fully sustain the honor of the office which he holds.

Response by Bro. Applegate on part of G. M., elect.

5th—Odd Fellowship—The friend of the distressed—May it stand as firm and unmistakable as the everlasting mountains which surround us, remain as pure as the indestructible snows which cap their heads, and shine as bright as the dazzling sun upon their tops.

Response by Rep. Whitson, of Friendship, No. 6.

6th—To the Order in Oregon—The furthest from the center, but like the most distant planets, its movements are essential to the well being and regularity of the whole system. May it move on, gathering strength and beauty as it goes, till it makes its whole circuit in the orbit of its glory and usefulness, forever gathering the trophies of Friendship, Love and Truth, and forever teeming like our own fruitful soil and genial clime, with the rich harvests of Faith, Hope and Charity, gathered and garnered by the paternal reapers and gleaning Rebeccas of the Order.

Response by Bro. Applegate, of Spencer Butte, No. 9.

7th—Our Order, and its influence on the Pacific coast.

Response by representative Upton, of Samaritan Lodge No. 1.

8th—The Brethren and Lodge—Represented here tonight by good and true men, whose presence we greet with hospitality and pleasure.

Response by Bro. J. N. Dolph, of Samaritan Lodge No. 2.

9th—Friendship—It began when the stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy. It shall never end while the principles of our Order are recognized and acknowledged by its members, but shall continue to live on until it gathers together the straying, reclaims the lost and links the great Brotherhood of man to that indissoluble chain that binds him to the eternal seat of the first Ruler of the Universe.

Response by Bro. Mitchell, of Hassalo Lodge No. 15.

10th—Cherokee—Our Old Home: May the Sons of Odd Fellowship always find a home under the maternal roof.

Response by Representative Chance, of Chemeketa No. 1.

11th—Representatives of Oregon Lodge No. 13: Our vote best in unison with yours. Welcome, thrice welcome!

Response by Representative Marshall, of Oregon Lodge No. 13.

12th—Albany Lodge No. 2.—The fourth star in the ... at present dim, yet not extinct.

... by Representative Burkhardt, of Albany Lodge No. 4.

13th—Columbian Lodge No. 5.—Once prostrate and ... now prosperous and ranking among the most active and useful of the lodges of this jurisdiction. May her prosperity ever continue, and her watchword be, do On!

... by Representative Hogue, of Columbia Lodge No. 5.

15th—Friendship Lodge No. 6.—The first link in our chain, founded in friendship, sustained by love, and defended with truth.

Response by Representative Whitson, of Friendship Lodge No. 6.

16th Barnum Lodge No. 7.—Located at the beautiful city of Corvallis, on the west bank of the Willamette and at the mouth of Mary's river: May her siftings be as quiet and as harmonious as has been the action of her Representatives in the Grand Lodge; and may she continue to grow in beauty, virtue and numbers.

Response by Representative Moore, of Barnum Lodge, No. 7.

17th—Spencer Butte Lodge No 9,—May the flood-gates of her charity be ever open for the relief of distress; and may her Applegate ever be prolific of digestible mental food.

Response by Bro. Applegate, of Spencer Butte No. 9.

18th—Eagle Creek Institutes of Jacksonville Lodge, No. 10.—Every welcome among us; although your homes lie in the beautiful and fertile valley that lies away to the distant south, we extend to you a cordial, a fraternal ... Although strangers, personally, to many of us, we nevertheless recognize you as brothers of one common family. May you enjoy this visit while here, and when your steps are homeward bound, may peace and prosperity attend you; and may you carry with you to your friends and brothers in that distant valley, our best ... our choicest blessings and our fraternal love. May your Lodge prosper in the future, as it has in the past.

... by Rep. Day, of Jackson No. 10.

19th—Odd Fellowship on the Blue Mountains.

Response by Rep. Bollinger of Blue Mountain Lodge No. 11.

20th—The Representatives of Anniversary Lodge No. 13.—Although the Lodge you represent is young in years, we are proud to know it is basking in the sunlight of prosperity. May a spirit of fraternal feeling and friendly rivalry ever animate you to excel; and may your banner ever float to the breeze, bearing high the inscriptions of our Order—"Faith, Hope and Charity Friendship, Love and Truth."

Response by Rep. Denlinger, of Anniversary No 13.

21th—Everything in nature has its time; everything is liable to change; but our sacred Order shall last as long as one bright star—the first site of our fraternity—shall enlighten the glorious firmament.

Miss. Enterprise Lodge No. 2, W. T.—May she add virtue to prosperity; subtract envy and strife from philanthropy; multiply benevolent accomplishments by unity of purpose; divide time by sociability; and reduce contention to its lowest terms.

Response by Rep. Wm. Shelton, of Enterprise No. 2, W. T.

22d.—The Representatives of Vancouver Lodge No. 3, W. T.—May the Lodge you represent at this table ever be living fountain, sending forth a continuous stream of fraternal feeling and good will toward man, that shall help to swell the great ocean of fraternal love even like the waters of the mighty Columbia upon whose banks you are pitched—roll on resistless and forever to the great sea.

... by Rep. Douthit, of Vancouver, No. 3, W. T.

23d—and last regular toast—To all lodges subordinate to the R. W. Grand Lodge: May they ever be composed of brothers imbued with the same spirit of love and fraternal feeling which is so conspicuous at this our social session; may peace and prosperity attend them bring their sojourn on earth, and when they are called home, may they all be admitted to seats in the Grand Lodge above where all will be peace, harmony and love.

... by Grand Secretary, Bro. C. N. Terry.

The responses to the above toasts were necessarily brief, but many of them were real gems of eloquence, and fraternal feelings. We have not space for them all; but by request of many of the brothers, we publish a response of Bro. Bollinger, of Blue Mountain Lodge to the 18th toast. We cannot, however, give the German accent of the speaker, nor his earnest yet naive delivery which added a peculiar charm to his words. Bro. Bollinger said: "Most Worthy Grand Master, Grand Representative and Brothers—I feel confident you will not expect a speech from me, when I assure you that for several years past, I have been living, I might say, almost outside of civilization; but I would tell you that in ... travels I have found, away up in the Blue Mountains, among hostile Indians, Odd Fellowship has erected its temple. Isolated, like an oasis in the desert, Blue Mountain Lodge No. 11, always will be a haven of rest to a weary brother, storm tossed by the billows of adversity. The Blue Mountain Lodge lives; may she live till the broad Columbia ceases to flow to the Ocean—great in deeds of Love and Charity."

After the regular toasts had been disposed of, the following volunteer toast was offered by Bro. J. H. Mitchell of No. 15:

Chemeketa Lodge, No. 1—Although it is represented at this table partly by Chance, we are not disposed to ignore its claim; nor can we require of it as much as of other Lodges, as it has furnished us Moore already.

Response by Rep. Moores, of Chemeketa No. 11

Bro. Geo. H. Chance of Chemeketa, offered the following:

The Order in Portland—May Odd Fellows always find a good a Part at which to Land

... by Rep. Upton of Samaritan No. 2.

The entertainment closed at 12:15 A. M., Saturday, by singing the "Closing Ode" and the offering of prayer by R. W. G. M. Wm. Morton. Too much credit cannot be awarded the committee of arrangements, consisting of Bros. O. H. Marvin, Jos. Buchman, W. W. Spaulding and J. F. Sharlie. Their very efficient labors and unwearied attention to the guests, secured to every one present, for the time, a degree of enjoyment as perfect as ... may reasonably expect on earth. The occasion will never be forgotten by any Odd Fellow who was present.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's court, yesterday, John McDonald had an examination on a charge of maliciously injuring property, and was held in the sum of $25, to answer before the Grand Jury at next term of the Circuit court.

John Miller was arraigned on a charge of larceny—stealing a pair of boots. The complaint was entered by Henry Dertzy. Owing to some defect in the complaint, the case was dismissed.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—In the U. S. District Court, yesterday, the only business transacted was the rendition of judgment, upon the verdict of the jury, in the case of the U. S. vs. D. B. Hannah and others, in favor of the U. S. to recover money on official bond; judgment for the United States, $2,725 08.

THE MATCH GAME OF CHESS.—The second game between the Portland Library Association and the Germania Literary Society, closed last evening, in a victory for the latter, the Portland Library Association resigning the game upon the 36th move. The playing time of this game was fourteen hours.

LECTURE.—The ladies of St. Stephen's Chapel will give a Recitation at Turn Verein Hall on Tuesday evening, May 28th, at 8 o'clock.

FIRE STEAMER.—The steamer Senator yesterday morning towed the schooner Crosby up to Oswego, where she will unload a lot of fire-stone for the Iron Works.

$12,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY TO BE GIVEN AWAY.—We noticed posters around town, yesterday announcing "$12,000 to be given away." The scheme is as follows: The steamer U. S. Grant and other property enumerated in the bills, are to be put up at lottery and tickets are to be obtained by taking a trip to Astoria and back on the Grant and paying $10 for the passage. The steamer is to make two trips each week and each passenger making the round trip and paying therefor $10, will receive one of 900 prize tickets to be drawn on the 1st of August or sooner, if all the tickets shall be sooner taken. The prizes are as follows: Steamer U. S. Grant, to be divided into four shares; one block of lots in East Portland, divided into eight shares, or one lot to a share, one gold watch worth $400, or if the winner prefers, $100, in coin; and 150 cards dry fire-wood, in three shares. The number of prizes is, therefore, sixteen, worth on an average seven hundred and fifty dollars each. The title to all the property is warranted. Tickets may be had of C. P. Ferry. The drawing is to be done by C. P. Ferry, R. J. Ladd, Al Zinsler, and C. S. Silver. The proprietor, Capt. J. W. Kern, says: "The above liberal offer is made to the traveling public to enable the subscriber to pay his debts, and not with any reference to speculation, as all the property is valued at much less than its cost, (the steamer alone having cost $11,000), and the price for carrying passengers to Astoria being much less than the usual fare.

THAT INDUSTRIAL AND IMMIGRATION AID ASSOCIATION.—The association with the above title, lately organized in San Francisco, which we noticed yesterday morning, is most probably a blind, as we supposed it at first sight. The editor of the Albany Journal, late of San Francisco, gives it the following puff: "In the Board of Directors we see precious few capitalists of San Francisco—in fact, none but of impecunious individuals, several. About six months ago, we know of one of them having been hauled up in a Justice's court, upon an order of examination, to answer as to his ability to satisfy a small execution in the hands of a constable, and he swore that he owned nothing but a cheap silver watch, which he left with the officer. How this chap has reached the financial magnitude of his present status, puzzles us. We'll bet a cookie that if any one can point out a couple of hundred dollars' worth of property belonging to this five-million director that an unfortunate creditor or more will give them half the proceeds for the discovery. There are some better names on the "board," but none known as capitalists, and several of but limited property. We believe the scheme to be one of those wild-cat operations which have been so prolific in San Francisco."

PASSENGERS FOR PORTLAND.—The steamer Montana, from San Francisco, Saturday the 18th, for Portland, has the following list of passengers: C Rincon and wife, Mrs Carolina Sabedra, S G Gibson wife and child, J Cartwright and family, Miss Cartwright and 2 sisters, E Cartwright, Mrs Myers and boy, J B A Brouillet, J Madden, S O'Reilly, W Huye, C B Upton, D Gibson, wife and infant and 2 children, N Boynton, H Freedman and wife, Wm Armstrong, L Armstrong, J J Armstrong, wife and 3 children, D M Duffell, C W Purdin, Mr Richards, H Wainer, A Kinney, T W Kinney, W Gladdon, L F Schultz, Dr Chase and wife, U S A, G D Bandeline, E St John, J Frazier, G Bird, and 45 in steerage.

CORRECTION.—In consequence of one of those peculiar difficulties under which all newspaper reporters always labor—the impossibility of getting correct details of an occurrence—we yesterday gave a "serenade" to the wrong man. We said that the Odd Fellows party at the Exchange, before dispersing, complimented the Grand Master elect with a serenade. Mr. J. T. Bloomfield was the Grand Master elect and Mr. Wm. Morton was then the serving Grand Master. The latter gentleman received the serenade, and it was after the breaking up of the party.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—Mr James Heath, who drives the Mason's Brewery team, stopped last evening on the baseball grounds and engaged in the game there going on. Striking the ball and starting to make a run, he fell and broke his left arm near the elbow. He received medical assistance as soon as possible, but the injury was so severe that it was found impossible to set the bone last evening. We understand that Drs. Gibson and Wilson will make the attempt this morning, to adjust the fractures.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—Arrived per steamer Senator, on Monday the 20th: 33 boxes, 67 gunnies bacon, 1,371 qr sks flour, 204 sks feed, 1 roll leather, 5 bf bbls dried apples, 1 bale woolen goods, 285 bags wheat, 40 bales hay, and 4 tubs butter.

TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION.—The steamer Commodore Perry is advertised to be sold at auction, on Wednesday the 29th inst., by Mr. A. B. Richardson, auctioneer.

REMOVAL.—Judge Hewitt of Washington Territory, called on us last evening. He leaves this morning for Olympia.

THE WIDE-AWAKES.—This new base ball company, will meet this evening for practice, for the first time, at 6 o'clock.

MORE PICNICS.—There are to be more picnics yet before May closes. Everybody goes; and everybody before going should go to Barnian Bros. and buy one of their elegant and cheap picnic suits.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.—From and after this day the well-known FRENCH LAFAYETTE RESTAURANT will serve a first-class table at the reduced price of Seven Dollars per week.

Consumption like the Rattle Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A lacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, death will be the result. Allen's Lung Balsam will heal the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter, thus stopping the cough, and preventing fatal consumption. AN ANTIDOTE FOR POISON.
THE PAIN KILLER.—Rev. T. Allen, writing from Tavoy, Burmah, says: "Within the past four years I have used and dispensed of about two hundred bottles, but am now out. Please send me a fresh supply as soon as you can—say two hundred bottles. I dare not be without it myself, and there are endless calls for it, both by Burmans and Karens. I always take it with me into the jungles, and have frequent occasion to use it, both on myself and others. One night, while sleeping in an open Zayatz, I was awoke by a most excruciating pain in my foot. On examination, I found I had been bitten by a centipede. I immediately applied the Pain Killer, and found instant relief. In less than an hour I was again asleep."
Rev. Mr. Hibbard, writing from Burmah to his father, says: "I have used Davis' Pain Killer for coughs, colds, summer complaints, burns, and for the sting of scorpions, with uniform success. We always keep it where we can lay our hands on it in the dark, if need be." ap20d1w

Johnnie Muir

In all the realms of Scotland there was none so fair as Jean Hamilton, the daughter of the Earl of Haddington, and she was beloved by the fairest and bravest knight that ever rode at tilt or tourney. But how seldom "does the course of true love run smooth," and how many hearts bleed and break beneath the torment of outraged and wounded affections! And so it was with Jean and her lover; for wrong came between them—wrong that led to crime and death.

"Now, my daughter—my daughter Jean," said the stout Earl of Haddington, "think no more of this young knight, Sir John Muir, of Dunbar, for I have chosen for thee a fitter mate—one meeter for an Earl's daughter—so rich in gold and lands as thou art; thou must wed the Earl of Cassillis, and think no more of Johnnie Muir."

"But, oh, my father!" said the Lady Jean, "I cannot break my troth to Johnnie—I cannot forget my love—I cannot wed this Earl of Cassillis, I will wed my own knight—Johnnie Muir and my gold and my lands will be sufficient for both."

Sore was the contest between love and duty in the heart of Jean Hamilton, sad were her words, and many were her prayers that she might be spared this cruel fate, but in vain. The father and daughter parted in anger and in tears, but the tears were poured unheeded, and her heart was robbed of its love.

There was never a wedding so gay in appearance as that of Jean Hamilton and the Earl of Cassillis. All that wealth could buy was there—all the beauty of Edinburgh was gathered to the marriage; but there was none to equal that of Jean, though pale as the white roses in her hair, she moved among them all.

The Earl of Cassillis was the sixth of his title, and came of good old stock. He was a stern covenanter, severe in aspect, plain and short in speech, there was nought in him to win a lady's love. But he had broad lands as well as noble name, and pure descent, and as such the Earl of Haddington chose him as his daughter's husband, for he was himself but a new made lord, and he thought to raise his family by this great connection. Cassillis had lands, and name and pure descent, and noble blood—but he wanted gold; and Haddington gave his daughter a rich dower, so that all parties were satisfied—save the poor, weeping bride, and the gallant knight, Sir John Muir, of Dunbar, who, though deserted, deserted not his lady love, and thought but how to regain her.

Poor Jean went to her husband's home, where for three long years they lived in peace and quietness, for, though there could be no love on her side, yet she became, in course of time, attached to him and his good qualities, his honest heart, his strong mind, his gentleness of principle, his love of truth and right, his high honor, his unblemished faith, such qualities excited her admiration and commanded her esteem, but they could not force a warmer sentiment; and though repressing her true feelings with all her strength, yet they rose ever in her heart, pleading, with ever-increasing yearning, for her first love. Three years passed, and three fair children, during that period, bloomed around the hearth of Lord and Lady Cassillis—three lovely daughters, like rosebuds in their beauty and similarity of appearance—each the image of its lovely mother.

Jean Hamilton began to feel what happiness was, her affection turned itself to these fair creatures, and on these she placed hope, sighing only sometimes as she gazed on their young faces, and thought, while she twined her fingers among their golden tresses, and looked into their blue eyes, of him, who, in her early dreams of bliss, had been the chosen husband of her heart—the sharer of her future life and love.

The Earl of Cassillis went for a three days' hunt in the forests of Tyningham, and his lady remained at home to tend her infants, and to sing to her soft into those witching strains which all loved to hear, they were so wild, so sweet, so sad. The Earl was attended by a gallant train of knights and squires, and grooms, and hinds, and huntsmen

The third day of the chase came—the third sun shone over that gay assemblage, now loaded with spoils, their white plumes somewhat draggled and defaced by their chase through tangled copsewood, and beneath low bending trees, their vests of Kendall green all stained with the blood of the quarry.

Lady Jean was alone within her bower. She dressed her children in snow white robes, and bound her long and golden hair with pearl. Her waist was clasped with shining gold, and pearls were in the clasps; and every finger, white and taper, was decked with golden rings. Her youngest babe lay sleeping in the cradle. She took the others to her side, and told them merry tales, or sang them moura lloogs, to while away the time while waiting for their father.

A sound was heard approaching the house—a sound of many voices, loud laughs and snatches of song, the trampling of feet—the clang of iron heels—the murmurs and the mingled noises of a crowd drawing near to the tower of Cassillis.

The lady and her children went to the window to see what company was approaching. Through the long avenue came a merry troop of gipsies, their brown faces glowing in the sunlight.

Up the long avenue the came, and on to the broad, green lawn, and beneath the huge plane tree they gathered; they were many in number, men, women and children, singing, and shouting, and dancing, with a hundred uncouth pranks and gestures.

Some maidens were among them, with jet black hair, white glancing teeth, and witching smiles, the dark locks, braided with gay kerchiefs, scarlet, blue and gold; the white teeth, showing with double brilliancy, between lips rosy red—the smiles, playing over cheeks whose soft deep brown was suffused with ruddiest crimson. There were also many young men, and aged creatures, bending beneath years and hardships, but still showing the untameable spirit of their race. And there were little children, some young as the lady's own sleeping babe.

One among the gipsies walked silent and aloof, a head taller than the rest, with a firm martial step and broad make of figure, differing from the peculiar characteristics of the tribe. But the lady did but look once, then turned her careless eyes away.

The visits of the gypsies to the tower were too common to excite her surprise, or to occasion any interest in her mind.

The lady continued her previous occupation, amusing and quieting her children; but, ere many minutes had elapsed, her old seneschal entered the room, and told her that one of the gypsies prayed earnestly to speak with her.

The lady hesitated; it was not her wont to see strangers in the absence of her lord.

But the seneschal spoke of the earnest manner of the gypsy, of his gentle tongue and humble entreaties, of his character—that he conceived that he should be ashamed to her powers.

He came and went, and closed the door for his entrance, and closed it behind him.

The lady and the gypsy, saving the presence of her infants, were alone; he ascertained this ere he advanced close to her, and, displacing the cloak that shrouded the lower part of his face, turned upon her the unforgotten features of her first lover, Johnnie Muir!

It was, indeed, her early love! Oh, lost so long—so long unheard of; he had returned at last!

No shriek burst from her lips—no cry; only one low murmur—the murmur of a heart too full for utterance—gave token of all she felt.

It was himself! unchanged in all—unchanged in personal beauty, with the same dark, passionate eyes, burning upon her own—the same proud melancholy countenance—the lips, speaking even when silent—the earnest, honest expression—heart and soul breathing forth upon that face, unchanged in mind and spirit, at his present daring—his present attempt, after long years of absence—of desertion—of wrong—too plainly proved.

They did but gaze one moment—then rushed into each other's arms

Poor hearts—so rudely parted! True hearts—true through so much despair, cling closely while ye may; beat—beat together—beat with your vain delight! Ah, would that upon this moment ye might break! It was a moment of delight—of joy unspeakable, there was no alloyed feeling mingled with that rapture. All but the bliss of meeting was forgotten, forgotten was the past anguish—the unsurmountable gulf between them—the agony behind—the agony before—the coming and gone-by despair. Only the present moment then dwelt with them—all else to them was nothing.

The lady raises her head, only to gaze up into his face, silent from emotion, and yet too blest for tears. His lips move, but no words issue thence, delight hath made him dumb. The children, playing at their feet, look with unconscious wonder on the stranger—half fearful, ignorant of wrong, yet thinking of their father The lady meets their inquiring eyes—she partly withdraws herself from the grasp of her lover.

"Ah, whorefore didst thou come?"

Long silence follows. Again one long embrace—heart, soul and spirit meeting at the touch.

Oh, a first love is a bond hard to break! and though she may seem weak and guilty through all that is to come, yet think what she has suffered—think what her fate hath been—think of the mighty passion suppressed so long—think of the heart, so long held silent—think of the long unaccompanied years, during which those souls have yearned for their predestined mates, that yearning at last satisfied, the kindred spirits met—think of all this, of all love is, of all it endures, inflicts, teaches—think of all this, and judge her gently!

The Earl of Cassillis returns from the hunting. He rides swiftly forward; but wearied dog and wearied horse, groom and hind, and huntsman, follow slowly behind.

The earl alights at his gate; his servants meet him at the door, with downcast looks they hold his bridle they lead his steed to stall

He is a proud man, and seldom holds converse with inferiors; he asks no questions, but passes through them all, and climbs the stately stairs

Why is his babe crying in its cradle? He starts as he listens to its feeble wail! Why are his children, subdued and silent, watching by that lonely cradle?

The earl strides up the room—his children spring into his arms—his crying babe smiles on he nods his tall plume above its rest. But where is his wife?—where is their mother?

He asks his children, and all they say is "she is gone"! He turns for information to the domestics, they stammer forth the truth Lady Jane is gone with the gypsy train, away with Johnnie Muir.

The earl was a man of few words he made little answer, put his children from him, and left the room He called his train of squires around him—fresh steeds were brought, wet, weary, chase-stained as they were, they mounted and rode in pursuit.

Not long, nor far did they ride. Where the ford crosses Doon, they came upon the gypsies and their troop, and there, indeed, was Lady Jane, with her green kirtle above her snow-white robe, and a golden net holding back her golden hair, the pearls were gone—the shining clasps were gone—the rings from her fingers were upon those of the gypsy girls—the ring that wedded her to her proud earl was worn by Johnnie Muir.

Hand in hand with Johnnie Muir, and heart to heart, the lady passed along.

She thinks of nothing but her love. Her very children are for the time forgotten; all ties of habitual affection—all pride, all honor, all womanly shame, all self respect, the purity of her unblemished name, the sanctity of the marriage vow—everything has passed before the overwhelming torrent of this reawakened passion, so intense, so desolating! Desolating, indeed, it was, bringing ruin and death alike to the innocent and guilty; for the vengeance was swift as terrible—and for those few rapturous moments came a retribution upon all connected with the actions of that day, dreadful in its prompt avenging.

The Earl of Cassillis was attended by so strong a band that resistance was out of the question. The whole of the gypsy troop were taken prisoners Johnnie Muir defended bravely himself and his lady-love, but all in vain. They were made captive and conveyed back to the Tower of Cassillis.

The Earl spake not a word on their homeward ride, nor did the Lady Jean say aught to him. She knew his disposition well; prayers and pleading would be in vain—what he had resolved, that would he do. But she turned her head ever back toward where her lover came, his hands bound behind him, led by two of the Earl's retainers, and with his dark eyes fixed upon her form. She heeded not the presence of her husband, but continued to cheer her knight by affectionate words and gestures, the tears rolling down her cheeks as she spoke, her sobs of anguish and despair rendering almost inarticulate what she strove to say.

Reaching the tower, the earl selected fifteen of the youngest and handsomest among the gypsy men, and these with Sir John Muir, were placed beneath the great plane tree in front of the house; the rest he dismissed with blows and stripes. They fled in terror howling and lamenting; the laughing, merry maidens weeping—the old men, the women, the children, all alike feeling that some terrible consummation was about to involve their friends, their lovers, their fathers, their companions in one common doom. But they did not dare to ask for mercy; they know too well the stern earl's temper—all turned away in sadness and despair.

The earl bid that the fifteen should, one by one, be hung upon the plane tree, and that, last of all Sir John Muir should suffer the same fate. Then with a strong arm he led his lady into the castle, spite of her wild entreaties to be allowed to perish with her lover—spite of her loud, shrieking farewells.

Johnnie Muir responded to her farewells, but in firmer tones, mingled with heart spoken blessings and prayers for her happiness. He reiterated an hundred times his expressions of undying love and worship, his thanks for the return she had made him, his acknowledgement of her affection. These two lovers, thus on the brink of separation—of death—of unknown agony, thought only of each other and their love. To them the future seemed nothing, as the past must soon be; and all that was to come, and all their weight of guilt—all fear of punishment in this world or in the next—were lost in the absorbing sorrow of that parting.

The lady was dragged into the castle, the rope was round the neck of the first of the poor gypsies, who was thus to die for the fault of others, when a voice at the window of the tower, fusing the plane tree, was heard to exclaim—

"Yes, you shall see it all—see all the misery thy crime has caused, suffer all these suffer. Think of the condemnation thou has given those, then live to remember!"

All looked toward the window; there were the countess and the earl.

One by one the gypsies were given to their death, one by one they swung upon the great plane tree. The countess strove to flee from the sight, but her lord held her fast, and all his said was, over and anon:

"See, cruel woman! see what thou hast done!"

The countess withered and struggled to be free, but she strove in vain. She strove to shroud her eyes and shut out the dreadful spectacle, but could not prevent herself from looking; every time she opened them, she closed them again instantly with a fearful shriek, for every time some face was turned toward her own, distorted in the death agony:

At last came Johnnie Muir. Then the earl, leaning from the window, shouted forth:

"Bring him nigh, beneath, that my lady may look upon her lover."

They followed the earl's words. Then the countess leaned forward from the casement, her long hair streaming down; she reached her arms toward her lover—she called wildly upon his name. He could not raise those fettered hands, but answered her with tender speeches. Calm, proud, self-possessed, with no emotion visible upon his countenance, save an unquenchable love for herself and pity for her sorrow, he gazed upward to her face. Then, murmuring a few passionate farewells, he turned toward the gallows-tree. The shrieks of the unhappy lady made every cheek grow pale save those of her stern husband and her dying lover: these possessed a constancy which nothing could daunt—these showed no fear and no remorse.

What a terrible sight! That miserable woman! that dying man! that stern husband, suffering so deeply, inflicting so much!

* * * * * * *

The lady lived long—lived in solitude and disgrace. She never again saw the children she had deserted—the husband she had injured, enduring the agony of a remembrance words could not depict or the heart scarce imagine!

The editor of the Kansas City Journal of Commerce, upon hearing that a radical convention has been held in Richmond, Va., thus apostrophizes:

"Sic semper tyrannis! A radical Convention in Richmond! No qualification of color! Black men are registered as the sacred precincts of all thy borders, Virginia! Chivalry is find thy gates! Chattels are now thy men, old Dominion! The tomb of Washington re-echoes no more to the crack of thy christianizing lash, and the rattle of thy philanthropic chains, oh! Mother of Presidents! Freedom has laid her foundations deep in the rotting wreck of thy former power! and the song of the freedman joyfully swells where the proud command of masters of men was obeyed! Verily, sic temper tyrannis!"

COLORED VOTERS IN NEW YORK STATE.—The New York papers consider that the question of colored suffrage in that State is not of so great importance after all, as the number of voters to be enfranchised is comparatively small. The total colored population of New York, 1865, was 44,708, a decrease of nearly 3,000 since 1860 Of these 20,031 reside in New York, Brooklyn, and their immediate neighborhood This includes men, women and children, and of the men several hundred are already voters. It is therefore estimated that were suffrage to be extended to all the colored males over twenty one years of age without restriction, not more than 5,000 voters would be added to the list in the entire State Pennsylvania contains more colored people than New York
